Flame Retardant

To Whom It May Concern;

We run a coverall rentals company. We treat the coveralls with flame retardant for the welders and the people that work underground at the mines.

In using the flame retardant product we get a greater lifetime out of our coveralls. At a cost of $32.00 per pair, we can get a year from one pair now, where we used to get six months.

We have also had comments from the men that do not need the fire retardant, requesting they be treated because they say it adds extra body to the material. I have tried this and found it to be the case.

We will continue to use your product for we get excellent results and it is economical in more than just price.

Yours Truly,
